Bill Fair "Undivided"

I write songs about what's going on inside of me personally or how I feel when I'm out in the world. It may not be true, but I can't remember a time in my life where everyone seemed so . . . divided. It feels like all of us (every race/creed/gender/etc included) are holding on with a death grip to our "side," whatever that is, ready to defend it viciously at the first sign of a perceived attack. There's so much tension! I believe, no matter who we are, that we ALL have common ground. I think we are all made by the same God, in His image, with an eternal soul inside every one of us. If true, that would make everybody the same at the most fundamental level – a reason to respect every single person. I do hope that we can open our hearts a crack while we are on this Earth to be kinder to each other. And if we can't actually be kind because there's too much personal emotion involved, which I totally get, I hope we can at least be respectful of one another. Enjoy "Undivided!"
