We draw our lines, we wave our signs
Longing to be recognized
We hold on tight, to the left or right
Demanding to be recognized.
No race or creed deserves less dignity,
We're sacred by design.
Each human heart imprinted by one God,
There's common ground.
Undivided, undivided
The same inside, reflecting the Divine
Undivided, we are images of God.
The path to unity demands a new decree,
To love instead of judge.
Give us eyes to see each other's sanctity,
It's time we realized . . .
No race or creed deserves less dignity,
We're sacred by design.
Each human heart imprinted by one God,
There's common ground.
Undivided, undivided
The same inside, reflecting the Divine
Undivided, we are images of God.
Love is, love is, love's the only way to get us through,
Love is, love is, love's the only way no matter who.
Love is . . .
No race or creed . . .
Undivided . . .
