Come, walk through the door
Eyes facing down
Filled with my guilt and my shame
Kneel onto the floor
And look around
We are all broken the same
Love washes us clean

All come hungry, All come thirsty
All are welcome, All are worthy
Even me

We're all searching for peace
Within and throughout
Yet build these walls that divide
Then, differences cease
When we reach out
Taste the flesh and blood collide
Grace breaks down the walls

All come hungry, All come thirsty
All are welcome, All are worthy
Even me

All believers now and before me
All united in one body, one bread, one cup
I've been restored, I've been reclaimed
I've been reborn, I've been renamed

All come hungry, All come thirsty
All are welcome, All are worthy
Even me
